

Market Information Seminar

The Markets for Medical Gloves in India & China and Global Markets for Cleanroom Gloves

India and China are considered the most attractive markets for medical devices including gloves given its sizeable population. Both countries' imports of rubber gloves have grown strongly over the last few years. The outlook for the gloves sector in the two countries are promising given the current low per capita consumption of gloves in the healthcare sector. This market information seminar aims to provide updates on the consumption of medical gloves in the respective countries. The seminar will also highlights the supply channels and key players in the glove industry, market outlook and provides updates on regulatory framework.
