World Health Organisation has estimated that there are more than 2 million kinds of medical devices around the world. According to the Fortune Business Insights, the global medical devices market is valued at USD 512 billion in 2022. This is projected to grow to USD 799 billion by 2030.

The Malaysian Rubber Council (MRC) has initiated this collaborative effort with the Medical Device Authority (MDA) to address members of the rubber medical device industry on the public health and safety issues related to medical devices and update the latest regulatory requirements of rubber medical devices. MDA will also provide an overview on the post market surveillance and enforcement of the rubber medical devices.
